

BUS 318 : Operations Management

The study of production and operations management explores the theoretical and quantitative decision tools for forecasting, planning, scheduling, and controlling the production process. Students will focus on evaluation of methods of production and selection of appropriate production alternatives.

Credits 3

Prerequisites

ECO 215 or Statistics course