BUS 335 : Management Information Systems

Focusing on the role of managers within an organization, this course emphasizes the role of computer-based information systems to support an organization's objectives and strategic plans. The course includes core concepts and hands-on application projects to illustrate the strategic role of information systems in an organization.

Credits 3